Barden receives static over sale of franchise

By BOB DENYS

ANP Staff Writer

Members of the Romulus City Council failed to approve an ordinance amendment allowing the sale of the Barden Cablevision Franchise to a new owner.

According to Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks, a two-thirds majority vote of the council is necessary to alter the ordinance. Councilmen Barry Baumann and Ellis Pennington denied Barden's request. Councilpersons, Banks, Pete Bergeron, Alan Lambert and William Wadsworth voted in favor of the sale. Councilman Junior Block was absent and excused.

Don Barden, owner of the franchise appeared before members of council Monday night. "This is sort of an emergency," he said. Barden cited a revision in the tax law in Washington and urged councilmembers to consider a vote and hence an approval of the sale. No sale price has been disclosed.

The new owner, Harry Suri, president and principal owner of N-Com, holding company of Omnicom in Plymouth, did not attend the meeting.

The sale was first proposed Oct. 5 and a subsequent meeting with council members, Suri and Barden on Oct. 12 resulted in no final vote. The sale is contingent upon the approval of councilmembers, according to Barden.

The city ultimately has a hammer over the cable company. My major concern is the deregulated over which we have no control.

— Pete Bergeron
City Councilman

Pennington said he had insufficient time to review the transaction and could not approve the sale at this time.

Changes were necessary in the present city cable ordinance to more "reflect language in the Federal Cable Act of 1984," Barden said.

"There are no substantial or significant changes in the amendment ordinance. It just cleans up the language and allows the ease of transfer. And it just updates the ordinance to the current state of affairs. I am indulging you and asking for your consideration," Barden said.

He added that members of the Van Buren Township Board approved the sale last week.

"I don't see a problem with the amendment. I don't see where this will hurt the residents of Romulus," said Bergeron.

"The city ultimately has a hammer over the cable company. My major concern is the deregulated rates over which we have no control. I believe that whomever has the franchise will run it the way they see fit. The lever we have is supply and demand. The market ultimately dictates what cable will allow," he said and added that after the rate increase late last year, there has been no significant turnover in local subscriber rates.

The attorney for the city of Romulus, Barry Seifman, was less optimistic. "I've given my position on this. My main concern was the ordinance language of 'state of the art' and preemption. The bottom line, an amendment is not passable at this time," he said.

Barden reassured that the term "state of the art" would remain in the ordinance.

Seifman suggested the city may be giving up rights it has presently should the Cable Act require less now or in the future.

"Why ask the attorney spend all that money and not use his opinion?" said Pennington. "I can't vote for this at this time."

"I just don't see a problem with this. I don't believe there's any more we can do for our residents," said Bergeron.

"I built the system when no one else would. Now, I'm just asking for reasonable consideration," said Barden.

It's apple bobbin' time in Romulus

Just about everyone in Romulus celebrated that naughty holiday, Halloween, in one fashion or another as evidenced by the number of parties and events scheduled throughout the city. Sure, there were ghosts, goblins and assorted other creatures such as Max Headroom, Ronald Reagan or Rambo rambling around. But no had more fun than this little resident, Steve Ward, 7 who bobbed for apples at Romulus High School. For more spine chilling photos turn to page 3, if you dare.

City anticipates major meeting

The announcement by Wayne city officials that a wetlands problem which threatened construction of a $340 million Ford Motor stamping plant in the city had been solved, has prompted a request for some clarification from Romulus city officials.

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally has invited Wayne city officials to a special meeting of the Romulus City Council tonight to discuss the sale of 75 acres of Romulus land to the city of Wayne. The Romulus land was purchased by Wayne officials and will be converted into a wetland as a replacement for the Wayne property previously classified as wetland by the state Department of Natural Resources.

Wetlands, under state law, are properties which cannot be developed and, consequently, cannot be placed on the tax rolls, a situation for which McAnally believes Romulus should be financially compensated.

"At least in its present, vacant state, the land was paying taxes," said McAnally. "I think we deserve some payment in lieu of taxes."

"The city of Wayne mitigated their wetland problem by giving it to us."

Wayne was forced to submit a mitigation plan to the Department of Natural Resources that requires the city to replace 45 acres of wetlands that were located on the site of the Ford Plant. The new wetlands will be created in Romulus on Van Born Road along Hannan Road.

McAnally has said the City of Romulus should be compensated for the loss of property which will be taken off the tax roll.

The property was owned by William E. Stears, owner of Stears Hardware on Middlebelt Road, died Oct. 26 at Rogers City Hospital near the his summer home on Lost Lake in upper Michigan. He was 72.

Mr. Stears was well-known and well-liked throughout the community, family members noted. His grandfather settled the area in the 1860s and received a government grant for property between Middlebelt and Inkster roads and from King to Britz roads. In 1948, Mr. Stears married into another long-time local family when he and Joyce Block were wed.

The Block family arrived in Romulus during the 1800s and settled all four corners of Middlebelt and Eureka roads. For many years the area was known as Block's Corners where the three oldest homes in the community can be found.

During the early 1920s, the Block family moved the old Texas School from Harrison and Goddard roads in Romulus to the southeast corner of Middlebelt and Eureka roads where it became a local landmark. Here, they established a hardware, gas station and grocery store. The soda fountain soon became a neighbor-

"During World War II, Bill served as a staff car driver. He was stationed on a ship in the Pacific Ocean when they dropped the bomb on Japan. The following day, he went ashore to survey the damage. He never ever talked about it," said Joyce who would have celebrated 40 years of marriage with her husband next July.

Recognizing the warning signs and seeking treatment for your loved one can be the first steps to reducing family fears and confusion. And to actually healing the sickness. Today, mental illness need not be hopeless.

When should a CATARACT BE REMOVED?

When vision decreases to the point where it adversely affects normal, daily activities, it is time to have a cataract removed.

Years ago, surgeons waited until the cataract was "ripe," as in danger of rupturing or destroying the eye. Then, the surgery required a fearful hospital procedure, stays of up to 14 days, sand-bagged immobility, and much pain.

Today, cataract surgery has become one of the most frequently performed operations in America. It is done on an outpatient basis and the actual surgery lasts less than 30 minutes. Most patients arrive at the outpatient surgical center in the morning, have their surgery, enjoy a light snack and are back to the comforts of home by noon.

This procedure has been greatly simplified since days gone by due to the rapid advancements in microsurgical technology. Local anesthesia, high-magnification instruments, fine nylon sutures, small incision techniques and intraocular lens implants all contribute to making cataract surgery a safe and effective method of restoring vision.

For more information on cataracts, please contact The Coburn Clinic.

"We opened the store day or night when someone had an emergency. We still do. But he always found time for his family," said Joyce.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by four children, Kathy Stears of Romulus, Sally Waugh of Denver, Peggy Staten of Romulus, and William Jr. of Romulus; two grandchildren and his three sisters, Elizabeth Kamin, Josephine Gilstorf and Mary Russow.

Stears built a new building in 1960 and at that time began to sell only hardware merchandise. In 1977, at the age of 62, he retired and handed the business reigns to his children. Seven years ago, the couple moved to Mesa, Arizona where they spent the winter months.

"He was just a down to earth person. He had a lot of friends. They followed us up north, and they were there when we moved to Arizona. He like to be around people, especially people who liked to laugh and someone quick with their wit. And every now and then, he'd come up with a good one," said

Joyce.

"He took pride in everything. Everything was just so," said daughter Sally. "He would hoe the garden backwards, so as to not leave any footprints. Really, I think it was to see if any of us kids walked through."

Mr. Stears was recognized with several awards from various hardware retailers during his career, including the Distinguished Merchandising Award of True Value. Family members were recently notified that the business may possess one of the oldest and original Red Devil electric paint shakers in the country.

"He always said traveling back and forth between Arizona and Michigan was the best of both worlds. He thought it was great. We were lucky. It's not often you see a family like working together. They take a real pride. And it was all part of their father's teaching," said Joyce.

Funeral services were Friday, Oct. 30 at St. Paul United Church of Christ, with interment at Michigan Memorial Park in Huron Township. Arrangements were made by Baum-Crane Funeral Home.

Harold Meininger of Royal Oak who payed approximately $7,000 per year in taxes, according to McAnally.

The meeting tonight at Romulus City Hall will be attended by Wayne Mayor Pat Norton, Dr. Gordon Guyer of the DNR, Maurice Roach of the Wayne County Planning Commission and Dewey Henry of the Wayne County Office of Economic Development, along with Romulus officials and interested citizens of both communities. The meeting is open to the public.

"That property is zoned residential and I would like to see it remain residential," McAnally said. She did not indicate whom she would ask for monetary compensation in the matter. Wayne Assistant City Manager John Zech said he understands McAnally's request for compensation but added that Wayne has no plans to pay Romulus for the lost taxes.

Zech added that the property on Van Born Road was the ideal location.

"We looked at a lot of different sites and they (DNR) really liked the 45 acres on Van Born," said Zech. "The DNR prefers the new wetlands to be in the same watershed as the one it's replacing and this one is."

Wetlands, under state guidelines, are those areas of land protected by development and reserved for the preservation and habitation of aquatic and plant life.

"The new wetlands has a better opportunity for growth than the old one," Zech said.

Wayne and Ford officials are still discussing with county and state officials the responsibility for payment for the new wetland property. Zech estimated the cost of such a project to be between $3,000 and $5,000 per acre.

Zech added that this will not delay the Ford project and the matter of who pays for the property is still under negotiation.

Sumpter Township jail plan stalled

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Plans to build a privately owned jail in Sumpter Township have been halted by a ruling from the state Attorney General's office which said cities are not authorized under Michigan law to keep misdemeanor offenses in a privately owned jail.

The ruling further stated, however, that misdemeanor offenders may be kept in a privately owned jail if it is leased and run by the city.

Dearborn businessman, Chip Acey, president of Ace Web Tool & Manufacturing Co. of Dearborn, had appeared before the Sumpter Township Planning Commission to seek approval for a privately owned jail in the township. Acey's plan met with heated opposition from Sumpter Township residents when he appeared before the planners and also at a public hearing. More than 60 citizens crowded the township hall last week to protest the plan to build the private jail.

The plan also was opposed by Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano who said that a private jail would be subject to problems such as strikes and bankruptcy and would leave local governments with liability and little control over the facility.

Sumpter Township Clerk Joan Oddy said it had been "premature" for Acey to bring his plans before township officials. Oddy said the plan had caused a great deal of apprehension for township residents "before it was determined whether the project would be legal." Oddy speculated that the issue was brought up in order to speed up a decision by the Attorney General's office.

Township officials had opposed the plan to build the privately operated jail, and expressed relief that Acey's plans seem to be halted by the decision.

local news in brief

Belleville Lake concerns affect Canton sewer plan

CANTON TOWNSHIP — Officials here have waited nearly a year for approval from the state Department of Natural Resources of a plan to join a Ypsilanti sewer alliance.

Canton Township Attorney Bob Law claims that approval of the plan is close, but the outcome of the proposal is still unknown.

"It looks much more positive now than it has all year," Law said. "They have been positive, and they are agreeable to our sending our flows out there."

Latest word from state officials is that Canton and representatives of the alliance have been instructed to devise a plan for minimizing the amount of waste which would infiltrate Belleville Lake — the receptacle of treated wastewater from the Ypsilanti sewer plant, according to Law.

"The concern is with the phosphorous levels in Belleville Lake."

Last year, the lake was determined as unsafe for swimmers and boaters due to dangerously high phosphorous levels.

Last week, DNR officials offered some suggestions for alleviating the problems, including building a separate discharge facility around the lake.

Much of the responsibility for building the discharge facility or any other structure would fall to the people in Ypsilanti, Law said.

Earlier this year, Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships formed the Western Townships Utilities Authority as a utility agency for negotiating a contract with the Ypsilanti group and later managing the newly created sewer partnership.

Shipping wastes from Canton to Ypsilanti will cost about $30 million, officials have estimated. A major expense would be the building of a pipeline from the western Wayne County communities to the Washtenaw County plant.

Romulus principal attends conference

ROMULUS — Barth Elementary School Principal William Smith attended the two-day workshop Oct. 26 and 27 of the Michigan Elementary and Middle School Principals' Association in Traverse City.

Smith attended a session designed to keep school administrators updated on the latest research and practices affecting schools. A highlight of the event was a closing talk given by Alex Haley, world-renowned author of Roots. Haley spoke on "The Future of Education."

83-year-old dies in trailer fire

WESTLAND — An early morning fire in a trailer park claimed the life of an 83-year-old man Friday.

Martin C. Adamski was found lying in the bathtub of a trailer, when firefighters arrived at the West Pointe Trailer Park, 7659 N. Inkster Road, Westland, according to Fire Chief Larry Lane. The fire broke out at 6:15 a.m., Lane said, after heat from a stove left on during the morning ignited the overhead cupboards.

Adamski died apparently from smoke inhalation, according to initial reports.

Fire officials suspect that the man had been awake and had started breakfast and forgot about the stove. The flames, officials suspect, overcame Adamski and caused him to fall into the bathtub.

No other injuries or damage to other trailers were reported, Lane said. Damage to Adamski's trailer was minimal.

Hospital authority not for sale, board says

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

"The five hospitals owned by the Peoples Community Hospital Authority are not for sale" was the message PCHA board members unanimously tried to convey to the community Thursday, in reaction to a University of Michigan study last month which recommended the sale.

All 33 board members present at the monthly meeting of the hospital authority voted in favor of a resolution supporting a PCHA affiliation with another medical center, health care group of teaching institution. The affiliation was recommended by a 13-member ad-hoc committee commissioned by the PCHA board of directors at their meeting Sept. 24.

Board member Milton Mack chaired the committee.

"Basically, the board rejected the advice of proceeding with the sale (of the five PCHA hospitals.) The message we wanted to give was that the PCHA is not for sale. There should be no mistake about that," Mack said.

The proposed sale was recommended last month in a report commissioned by state Speaker of the House Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti Township) and coordinated by J. Forsyth and the University of Michigan Hospitals. Owen had requested the report before the state Legislature would consider whether Public Act 47 — which serves at the legal framework of the structure of the PCHA — should be amended. PCHA board members had last year asked the state lawmakers to alter the act to allow the hospital authority to become a private, nonprofit organization.

In the PCHA report, Mack said his committee refuted three key claims in the U of M report. The claims included a U of M contention that the five community hospitals were no longer needed to provide adequate health care in the area, that no other medical center, health care group or teaching institution would become affiliated with the authority and that the financial picture of the PCHA was bleak, Mack explained.

"We found that there was no support for any of these contentions," Mack said.

In fact, he continued, officials from between three and five health care groups and/or teaching institutions have expressed an interest in becoming affiliated with the five PCHA hospitals — Annapolis in Wayne, Beyer Memorial in Ypsilanti, Seaway in Trenton, Heritage in Taylor and Outer Driver in Lincoln Park. Mack would not, however, disclose the names of the agencies.

In addition, an audit of the hospital authority finances showed last month that an earlier prediction that the PCHA would be losing up to $6 million in 1987 was inaccurate. Mack said the total operating losses will total about $2.7 million this year — or only $288,000 if interest income is used to offset the losses.

The U of M report had predicted that the PCHA will have depleted $27 million in cash reserves by 1992 to pay for the continuing losses. Mack said recent financial reports invalidated that claim.

With a recommendation of their own to replace the U of M findings, PCHA board members will now actively pursue affiliation with another health care organization with the hope of preparing a proposal for the state Legislature within 60 days, Mack said. Details of the affiliation agreement have not been prepared, he added, although PCHA board members have expressed an interest in retaining at least 50 percent of the control of the authority.

An alternate to selling the five hospitals in the U of M report also detailed a PCHA affiliation with another health care organization, Mack said. However, in the U of M report, the operating control of the hospitals would be given to the health care organization, with the PCHA board of directors' control minimized.

Nevertheless, whatever decisions about the affiliation are made, Mack said a change in the public act most likely will be needed. Currently, the state law prohibits the PCHA from engaging in business relationships with other agencies.

"What we want to do," Mack said, "is develop the best program for the communities. We're not going to let the question of whether we have to amend (Public Act 47) or not control us. If it requires altering by the legislature, we'll do that. I would say more than likely it does."

The PCHA was established in 1945 by the state Legislature through Public Act 47. Started as a means to provide quality health care to the downriver and western Wayne County areas, the hospital authority is owned and operated by the taxpayers in the 24 member communi-

State tax reform would affect local schools

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

"Parents in this state pay some of the highest tax rates in the country despite an almost hysterical aversion for tax increases," said Romulus School Superintendent William Bedell during his testimony at a public hearing of the Michigan State Board of Education last week at Wayne State University.

This was the first of four public hearings scheduled throughout the state by the Michigan School Finance Committee which is examining inequities with public education funding and curriculum.

The committee completed a report earlier this year which asked for a 40 percent reduction in property taxes and an increase in the state sales tax from four cents to six cents. A mandatory curriculum for schools across the state was also proposed.

"The report proposes two basic parts, cuts in property taxes and increases in sales taxes. Another aspect would mandate a state-wide curriculum," Bedell said.

Lynn Estell, public affairs specialist for the Department of Education, explained the report was adopted by members of the board "in principal" Oct. 13.

"The board decided to take the report before the public to get their reaction," said Estell. The remaining hearings are scheduled for Nov. 2 in Marquette, Nov. 5 in Saginaw and Nov. 12 in Grand Rapids.

"Much of the report, especially in the quality of education section, has value and can be the basis of many significant changes," said Bedell who with George Bell, president of the Wayne County Association of School Administrators and several other superintendents, presented their views during the public hearing.

Bedell cited several inequalities about the proposal. He noted that Romulus residents currently tax themselves at a rate 16.67 mills higher than one of their nearby neighbors and yet they gain $671 less in revenue in per pupil despite this higher tax rate.

"Romulus has the highest school tax rate in the state which places us easily in the top 10 percent in the nation. For years, in-formula school districts (such as Romulus) have chronically suffered with fewer resources and forced to compete unfairly with wealthier school districts," Bedell said.

He further stated, "To compound our problem, the state has attempted to use our tax base to solve a number of non-educational problems."

Tax abatements and the Tax Increment Financing Authority which redirects school tax money to build sewers and roads and encourage local growth were areas specifically mentioned. He said the tax base has been reduced "to subsidize airports so they could grow."

Rescuing the Rouge

Group director sees success in efforts

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

update

It is sometime in the year 2005.

It is one of those hot, humid summer days in southeastern Michigan. A boy looks up at his father with big pleading eyes and begs, "Dad, let's go fishing in the Rouge."

"Sure, son, grab your swim suit. If the fish aren't biting, we'll go swimming."

Swimming? Fishing? In the Rouge? The dirtiest waters in the state of Michigan.

No, it isn't a dream. Thousands of residents, backed by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and the "Friends of the Rouge," have rolled up their sleeves and are busy cleaning up the Rouge.

The campaign, "Rouge Rescue," has been one of the largest undertakings by local, county and state governments in the history of Michigan. And, according to promoters, it has been successful.

The object is to make the River Rouge a viable and clean river again.

"We have the ability to work closely with local units of government, provide technical information which will help them reach collective decisions," said John Amberger, SEMCOG executive director.

Considering that the Rouge River, with four major branches - the Lower Rouge, Middle Rouge, Upper Rouge and Rouge - drains about 465 square miles in Wayne, Oakland and Washtenaw counties and runs through 47 communities including Inkster, Wayne and Canton Township, the importance of the cleanup can't over emphasized, officials said.

More than 1.5 million people reside and work in the 467-square mile basin.

And, because of international agreements, the Rouge, which feeds into the Great Lakes, must be cleaned. The Canadian-American Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement of 1978 calls upon the United States and Canada "to eliminate or reduce... discharge of pollutants into the Great Lakes system."

The timetable calls "for the reclaiming of the Rouge to meet designated uses by the year 2005."

Coordinating the cleanup efforts are the "Friends of the Rouge," chaired by James Murray, a Wayne native.

The "Friends," a nonprofit, citizens' organization dedicated to the restoration of the Rouge, has enrolled hundreds to the cause. "Friends of the Rouge" was formed and shares office facilities with the Rouge River Watershed Council.

In the "Initial Remedial Action Plan for the Rouge River Basin" report, unveiled in January 1987 and submitted to the Michigan Water Resources and prepared by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, some of the problems of the Rouge were identified.

On the drawing boards, SEMCOG and the "Friends of the Rouge" have outlined some of the general improvement goals for the Rouge. These goals, officials said, are obtainable with the help of local, county and state governments. These goals include:

- Reclaim the Rouge River to meet designated uses and water-quality standards by the year 2005 to the greatest extent practicable;
- Protect the public health from threats due to pollution of the Rouge River;
- Make the Rouge safe for at least partial body contact recreation, to the greatest extent practicable;
- Develop the recreation potential of the Rouge River and its banks;
- Develop fisheries throughout the Rouge River system;
- Protect the Detroit River and the Great Lakes as a consequence cleanup of the Rouge itself;
- Eliminate nuisances that limit the use of the Rouge and its banks; and
- Provide multiple benefits from the Rouge cleanup and development including flood protection, wildlife habitat, open space and aesthetics.

Dozens of local residents participated in the Rouge Rescue in 1986 and 1987 (above), an effort that Friends of the Rouge officials say will make the waterway usable for recreation activities after the turn of the century. Rouge rescues have also been planned for 1988 and several years to come. ANP file photos.

Handicapped recreation program might receive regional support

By JANICE FRITZ
ANP Staff Writer

Representatives from six cities attended a special study session in Westland Monday in hopes of saving the 11-year-old structure of the Tri-City Therapeutic Recreation program.

The meeting was scheduled by Westland Council President Kenneth Mehl to see if other communities would financially support the recreational program for the physically and mentally impaired. Westland officials last spring decided not to participate in the three-city program, an event that threatened the continuation of the program for the two remaining cities.

Mehl said the meeting, which took place at the Bailey Recreation Center, was attended by several residents and former participants to hear officials from Westland, Wayne, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Romulus, the Livonia Board of Education and the Wayne-Westland Board of Education discuss methods of saving the program.

Tri-City, which was a cooperative program for the disabled supported by the cities of Westland, Wayne and Garden

At the meeting, it was quite evident that there was a lot of interest in the program from the other cities. I'm quite positive that this is going to be resolved.

— Kenneth Mehl
Westland Council President

City, was in existence for 11 years before Westland city officials decided not to participate and establish a program of their own for Westland residents. Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, during the city budget talks in the spring, said the Tri-City program was utilized by residents in more than the three supporting cities - residents whose city budget did not contribute funding to the program.

State Rep. Justine Barns (D-Westland) was present at the meeting. Barns said she will investigate obtaining state funding to aid the program.

Other suggested ways of saving Tri-City included sponsorship of it by all cities participating in the Conference of Western Wayne and allowing the residents of non-contributing communities to participate with a surcharge.

Mehl said all city representatives favored the surcharge, although a fee structure was not discussed.

The Tri-City budget annually is between $75,000 and $80,000, Mehl said, not including the cost of using city-owned facilities. Under the 11-year-old plan of the program, the amount each of the three cities was required to contribute was based on the number of users from that city during the previous year.

And, despite the fact that the meeting was only preliminary, Mehl said he was optimistic that the structure of the program would be saved.

"At the meeting, it was quite evident that there was a lot of interest in the program from the other cities. I'm quite positive that this is going to be resolved. It may not be resolved as fast as some people may like, but it will be resolved," Mehl explained.

Tri-City program needs support

The struggle hasn't ended, but, in the end, those who fight the hardest will be the victors.

That lesson is a good one for the Tri-City Therapeutic Recreation program and supporters of it in the cities of Wayne and Westland – a program which earlier this year was thought to be in danger of staying in existence, after Westland city officials said they would not longer fund their portion of the program. A special study session of the Westland City Council last week attracted city officials and backers of the program from Wayne, Westland, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Romulus, the Livonia Board of Education and the Wayne-Westland Board of Education.

It also offered a glimmer of hope for the program, which needs support from several cities to maintain the high quality of services it provides to the physically and mentally handicapped residents in the area.

Tri-City was formed 11 years ago by the then recreation directors of Wayne, Westland and Garden City. It was formed to fill a need for the handicapped of those three cities, a need that would enable these one-time shut-ins to learn how to deal with and be accepted by a less-than-enlightened society.

Under the original plan of the three cities, funding for the Tri-City budget – which is today between $75,000 and $80,000 – would be divided among the three cities, based on a percentage ratio of the number of users in the program from each city.

Westland city officials, however, this spring decided to no longer participate in the program, since they were shown figures revealing that residents from more than the three supporting cities participated in the program. The officials opted, instead, to fund a smaller-scale, lower-budget operation within their own city, a solo operation that would, in effect, cripple the financial structure of Tri-City and threaten the continuation of it.

The move by Westland officials was marked by sharp criticism from users of the program and residents who had come to respect the award-winning program. The residents voiced their objection, fought hard to see a change-of-mind by Westland officials and are today reaping the fruits of their labors.

But the struggle has not ended.

The special study session Oct. 26 was well attended by representatives of several communities – representatives who made several promises that make the future of Tri-City seem bright. But those promises now need to be turned into actions, actions that resemble financial support, manpower support and support from the community.

Today, we are calling upon representatives of all communities in the Conference of Western Wayne to explore a manner in which they can participate in this highly acclaimed program for the handicapped. This idea was not our own but was the creation of one of those in attendance at the meeting last week. With a regional backbone, the Tri-City program can not only continue, but it can grow in quality and scope of services provided and serve as a benefit to residents throughout the area.

Today, we also commend the many supporters of the Tri-City Therapeutic Recreation program for their valiant and never-ending battle to keep their program alive. The benefits of such a program for the handicapped in the community are endless – just ask one of the program participants.

More time is on our side

The wheels could not turn too slowly in the proposed building of a privately owned jail in Sumpter Township, when considering the almost endless string of questions and concerns that must be granted.

The plan to build the jail was made by Dearborn businessman Chip Acey, president of Ace Web Tool & Manufacturing Co. Acey has appeared before the township Planning Commission with his proposal.

Acey's plan were justifiably stalled last week by representatives of the state Attorney General's Office, who said cities are not authorized under Michigan law to keep misdemeanor offenders in a privately owned jail.

The Attorney General's ruling has provided all parties involved some time to analyze the issue carefully, before any decision – which could later be regretted – is made.

The idea of a privately owned jail is a relatively new one in our criminal justice system. Several questions arise – Who will provide the security for the facility? How will the citizens have control of it?

These and dozens of other questions must be asked time and again before an inch of soil is removed to make way for this new jail. While we commend Acey for an idea that might be someday considered innovative and positive in the criminal justice process, a decision on an issue as serious as building a jail in our community – public or private – can never be made too quickly.

Counting on you

It's something we all do...this counting. Accountants and economists are supposed to do it better than most of us sidewalk abacus workers as it is their profession. But we all do it, in nearly every facet of our lives.

We count at the grocery market to be certain that we received what we thought we were buying during the six items for $2 special. At the ball park, we check the scoreboard to see who is winning. In a game of cards, we verify the point totals to see if we are the winner. It is a natural and normal thing that we do this counting.

A problem develops, however, when we begin to reduce our inter-personal relationships to a matter of score-keeping. This is usually the forerunner of the end of any spontaneous, warm and loving relationship.

Most any thinking, rational, and intelligent human being knows perfectly well that friendship and love can not be reduced to a matter of numbers. Yet otherwise alert adults seem to keep a running score of how many times they did something for another. They total it up to see whether "they did more" for us or whether "we did more" for them.

As best I can determine, this generally occurs when there is unhappiness in the relationship as a result of other matters which are based more on emotion than logic. The real subject of unhappiness usually lies within an area these "counters" don't feel they dare approach with any candor.

Therefore, they continue to count, assuming the role of the abused partner in the relationship. With that as a basis, they continue to act as though they have been taken advantage of in some way.

How many times has a spouse begun a sentence by addressing a mate with the words, "You never..." or "I always have to..."?

With our spouse, children, parents, brothers and sisters, or friends, we accuse others of not delivering to us an adequate numerical quantity of a like substance in order to insure themselves of receiving an ongoing supply of our admiration and affection. It all seems to boil down to, "Do more for me, or I won't love you anymore."

When we reduce a human relationship to the lowest common denominator of one to one, you do this for me or I won't do that for you, then the end of any basis for a caring and sharing quotient is in sight.

Taking this one boring step further, I find it most interesting when personal relationships enter the business world, where in essence, it is a counting game. Quantifying, tracking numerically, projections in dollars and percentages, is what will cause you to win or lose in the world of business.

What happens then when people say, "I'm your friend, and therefore we shouldn't count." Yet in reality, they continue to meticulously measure the exchange of time, favors, attention or even money. They measure how the number of hours spent working late for the company, yet they neglect to count the frequent times they left early to attend to personal business.

Their memory is without flaw in recounting to you, and to others, the number of times their performance exceeded the norm, yet they seem to have contracted Alzheimer's disease when it comes time to discuss how many times they were carried when there was little or no justification for doing so.

In a rather cynical tone, someone once suggested that business is a matter of trading a big favor for a little favor. I refuse to yield to that notion.

Another suggested that you can not be friends with your employees or perhaps even co-workers. I certainly accept the difficulty of maintaining a business and personal relationship at the same time. Yet I do not bend to the same conclusion.

My assessment, rather, is that if you can operate on two different levels, within an acceptable level of role conflicts for both parties, a bonding can be stronger than is possible in most any other area of our lives.

The trick perhaps, is in establishing the rules clearly for when either of you will turn the adding machine on. Whether in business, family, or community, the act of giving is not something that should be done grudgingly, but rather for the feeling of euphoria derived from knowing you have played a role in accomplishing something for others, through others and with others. See you next week.

Canton club addresses vacancy

To The Editor:

It is common knowledge that Canton Township Trustee Steve Larson will soon be resigning from the township board due to relocation of his residency to Hamburg, which means he is now a "lame duck."

What I have observed is issues on the board are being hurried through the processes while his vote can still be "counted on."

The elimination of the special election for the recreation complex was because Sept. 15 could not be acquired, so the election could wait until August 1988. The real reason was to keep any of us, including the public, from requesting a joint election to fill the vacancy of Steve Larson, by allowing the position to be opened to the public.

Several of us do not wish to see a "buddy" of the existing slate of four trustees appointed to fill the vacancy, but rather a "breakup" of the four votes to acquire an "independent thinker," not a "follow-along" do "as he's told" individual.

Too many issues are passing at board level on a 3-to-4 or 2-to-4 vote. These are issues that all the people who still live in Canton after Steve has left are "stuck" with. If Steve really and honestly cared for this community, he would realize that for the betterment of the community his resignation should be forthwith, instead of concerning himself with the $100 a meeting he receives.

It is certain to those who are involved in Canton government that the superintendent issue and those issues altering the entire structure of the administration hinge on Steve's vote, which is why the Bartel & Bartel proposal was never presented to the township board and adopted without the board ever reading the proposal or even approving the $16,000 the study cost until that evening.

The four votes must have agreed outside the meeting that the monies should be spent because they were presented with the proposal at the meeting as well.

Because of the need to rush developers and site plans through the system for Steve's vote, details are being omitted and quality is being sacrificed.

The Target store development adopted on Oct. 6 is to be located in the Downtown Development Area, and landscaping island were not required because it increased their cost and hindered snow removal. They are also in a hurry to build.

Firefighter defends quality of department

To The Editor:

I am writing to take issue with a statement made by Inkster

Mayor Betty Miller which cast doubt on the qualifications of Inkster firefighters.

Recently, on Barden Cablevision, Mayor Miller stated that the majority of our firefighters are not "state certified." This leaves the false impression that we are untrained and below standard.

The fact is that state certification has never been required in the past, and most small communities have always stressed on-the-job training. Even so, several of our members have attended fire academies in Livonia or Ann Arbor. In addition to this, most of us have, through the years, voluntarily attended, and successfully completed various seminars and training sessions covering a wide variety of subjects pertaining to firefighting. Additionally, each of our officers has attended Incident Command School.

This training, coupled with our normal average of eight fire and rescue runs per day enables us to keep our skills at a level that far surpasses the basic skills required for "state certification." The pending legislation (House Bill 4704) would require only newly hired firefighters to be state certified and would exempt all present, experienced firefighters from this basic mandatory training.

Such attitudes by city officials only serve to lower the morale of the dedicated professionals who serve the citizens of Inkster.

Franklin principal reflects on the past

To The Editor:

This week I will begin a new assignment in the Wayne-Westland Community School District and would like the opportunity to say farewell and thank you to the students, parents and staff of Franklin Junior High.

During the past 18 years, my life has been touched and enriched by sharing experiences with dynamic adolescents and quality adults. I have been fortunate to personally enjoy and professionally grow as I interacted with wonderful people in my changing positions as a science teacher, department head, counselor, assistant principal and principal. I am proud of the students and staff at Franklin and feel fortunate to serve an excellent school district.

The decision to leave my professional "family and home" was the most difficult one in my life. In September, I requested the opportunity to fill a new vacancy in our district because it is time to experience a career change with new opportunities to continue learning. On Sept. 28, I was appointed principal of Stottlemeyer Elementary but was asked to remain until a replacement could be selected. That time has now come, and it is with heartfelt gratitude that I leave you. I am indebted!

State waterways deserve protection

Water is the most abundant natural resource in Michigan. Yet in spite of this abundance, we cannot take environmental quality for granted.

It was with this in mind that the Council of Great Lakes Governors--a group consisting of the governors of the six states bordering the Great Lakes--signed the Great Lakes Toxic Substances Control Agreement last year. The states of New York and Pennsylvania are also signatory parties to the agreement.

The council recently conducted the first annual review of the implementation of the agreement, which pointed to the early successes of the plan.

A conference sponsored by the council laid the groundwork for integrating air and water programs to determine the effects from both of these media on the lakes.

Uniform fish consumption advisories have been developed for the 1987 fishing season so that the information an angler gets from one state will be consistent with what he gets from another.

The council coordinated collective action on several federal issues affecting the lakes, including working for the passage of the Clean Water Act reauthorization and appropriations for the Great Lakes Amendment.

In Michigan, new water quality standards have been established to require more stringent tests for discharges to the Great Lakes. Progress has also been made on cleanup

capitol column

plans for Great Lakes hot spots and testing of Great Lakes birds and fish are helping to protect the lakes from toxic pollution.

Collection and utilization of fish contamination data have been improved. Laboratory quality control and assurance programs are being standardized to ensure high-quality fish contaminant data that will be acceptable to all parties. In addition, fish contaminant monitoring has been increased.

Michigan has also stepped up enforcement of existing environmental regulations. Our aggressive compliance program in the state has led to 97 percent of the industrial and 85 percent requirements. Michigan has collected more than $30 million in penalties in the last 10 years.

Michigan is one of the pioneer states to address toxics in air permit process. This summer Air Toxics Workshops, sponsored by the Department of Natural Resources, will lead to computerized data base allowing review of airborne loading of toxic substances.

The Great Lakes are an abundant and precious resource, which can be only protected and preserved by concerted deliberate effort. We can be proud that Michigan is taking a leading role in that effort.

Changing seasons

Carolyn Kelley of Gertrude Street, Wayne, isn't jumping the gun on the winter season. However, from several years of prior experience, Kelley has learned that using a snow shovel is the best way to quickly remove the leaves from the areas around her house because "they are too heavy to rake." She is preparing for the citywide vacuuming of the leaves this week. And does she receive any help from her kids? "Surely you jest," Kelley said with a smile.

sherry woodard speaking

Last week, my employment at Associated Newspapers ended, making this column somewhat like the legendary "voice from the grave."

This week I will end my residency in the State of Michigan, after living and working here for almost three years. My husband and I have decided to "go west" and relocate in the great State of Texas--Dallas to be exact.

It is a move I look forward to with great anticipation but at the same time there are many things in the Detroit area that tug at my heart and have permanently leased a corner of my mind.

If you hate long and corny goodbyes, this is probably the time to bail out and stop reading. If not, here is a list of things I will miss most about this area and have learned to appreciate in my short time here.

•The phrase "and that." Ever notice how often it creeps into the everyday conversations of most Michigan residents? Why isn't the phrase, "and this?"

•The everlasting debate on whether Michigan residents are supposed to be called "Michiganians" or "Michiganders?" My vote is for Michiganians. Michiganders sounds like a species of air or water fowl.

•Heapin' helpings of Greek food in Greek Town. Although I am not a big fan of Greek food, I could always appreciate the fact that the Greek give you your money's worth in their restaurants.

•Hearing snow crunch under my boots.

•The deep feeling of appreciation for a warm home that only an Alberta Clipper can properly instill.

•All my fans (yeah, all 12 of you) who not only read me on these pages of Associated Newspapers but also viewed my talk show on WKBD TV 50.

AND LASTLY...I would like a drum roll for the thing I will miss the most...

•All my friends here. Bye, y'all!

AREA ACTIVITIES PROMISE EXCITEMENT

Something available for all

By JANICE FRITZ
and JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writers

What do you do when it is too cold to lay in the sun?

The dilemma will be faced by many in the next few weeks. And the coach-potato crisis looms. But the active pursuer of wintertime recreation won't have a worry in the world.

The western Wayne County abounds with wintertime pastimes, according to the promoters of several local programs. From crafts and cooking to sports and singing, the list of activities could be endless.

Here are just a few examples.

Canton Township

- During the winter months, the Canton Softball Center is magically transformed to an inflatable soccer dome, featuring two soccer fields inside. The dome is used throughout the winter for both league play and private scrimmages. There are two fields available. The largest field is available for rent for $55 an hour. A smaller field is also available for $40.

Throughout the winter months, there are three soccer leagues, the first one beginning Nov. 1 and the final season beginning the first week in March and continuing until the end of the month. Registration for leagues is ongoing and is available by calling 483-5600.

Romulus

- Romulus residents can stay active during the winter by taking advantage of their parks and recreation department, since it offers a wide variety of things to do. There's something for everyone, beginning with the after-school program for elementary students in the Romulus school district. On most afternoons, from 3:30 to 5, one can find kids playing soccer, floor hockey or basketball games at three of four various schools in the district. The program continues from now until the end of the winter.

Adults in Romulus can take advantage of the adult "drop-in" program at both South or North junior high schools. Adults are invited to drop in on co-ed volleyball games from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Mondays at North Junior High school, as well as men's basketball games on Tuesdays at North Junior High from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and Thursdays at South Junior High from 7 to 9 p.m.

- For those who do not care to play basketball or volleyball, there is also a variety of craft classes at the recreation building on Bibbins Road. Classes are on Thursday mornings from 9:30-11:30. On Monday mornings, ceramic classes are also offered. For more information on these and other activities in Romulus, call Debbie Dick at 942-6852.

Belleville

- Want to get some exercise while enjoying nature at the same time? Take a hike!

John Sterling of the Lower Huron Metro Parks office suggested that people spend an afternoon walking the trails at Oakwoods Metro Park in Flat-rock. While, Sterling said, the location may seem a bit far away for residents in or around the Belleville area, it is the closest Metro Park to the vicinity, and the views on the trails are well worth the extra drive time to get there.

Westland

- The Bailey Recreation Center in Westland has enough activities to keep everyone occupied all winter long, including adult scrimmage games of co-ed walleyball, volleyball, racquetball and men's and women's basketball scrimmages. For the kids, there are youth dance classes of tap, ballet, modern jazz and baton classes, along with an excellent gymnastics class. Karate classes are also offered.

- The Westland Municipal Golf Course does not close down for the winter. In fact, there's more to do there during the cold months than in the summer months.

For people who don't mind braving the cold and enjoy the exhilaration of being in the great outdoors during the winter, the 50-acre golf course is converted into a two-and-one-half mile cross country ski track. Equipment rental is $6 for four hours, and there are also lessons offered.

But for those people who prefer to stay indoors and watch the skiers from a window - where it's warm - why not brush up on that golf swing? Take lessons from golf pro Ray Glenn from the Rouge Golf Course. Lessons begin early in 1988 by appointment. Six half-hour lessons are offered for $50. More information may be obtained by calling Carl Morton at 721-6660.

For seniors . . .

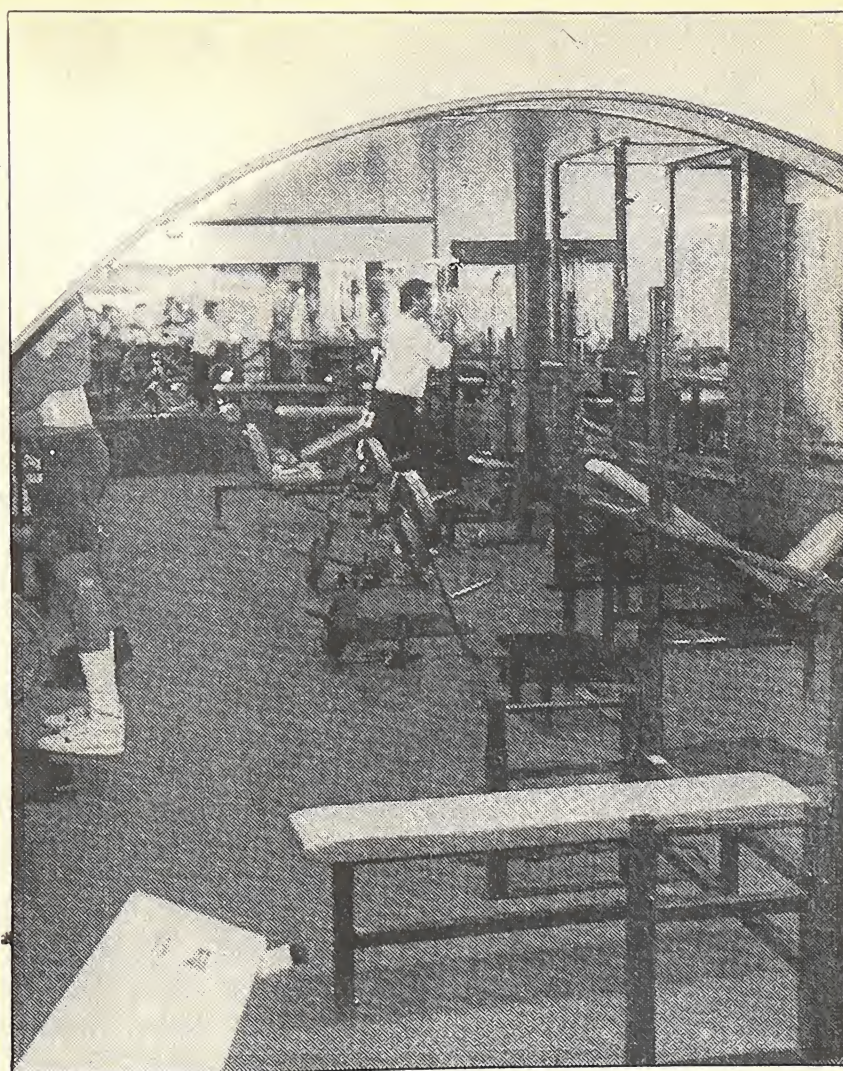

Although a few "snow birds" fly south for the winter, most of the senior citizens in the area brave the Michigan winter and keep busy with numerous activities.

Senior citizen programs are busier in the winter months, according to Diane Neihengen, director of the Canton program, and Connie Brinkerhoff, director of the September Days program in Belleville. Outdoor activities during the summer months tend to cut down on program participation, they said, but as the cold weather begins, the seniors return to the classrooms and resume their activities.

The holiday season will be highlighted by Christmas parties, bazaars and special activities at the local senior centers.

Active seniors play volleyball in the winter months, Neihengen said, and start "spring training for softball in April." For those who want a short escape from the cold weather, trips are planned to San Diego and to the Southwest, she said.

Classes continue throughout the year, with new sessions beginning in September and January, she said. Non-credit classes also are offered by Wayne County Community College.

Brinkerhoff also noted that classes in the Quirk School facility continue throughout the year. One of the most popular classes offered is a painting class taught by Mary Fancher the director said. The class, which began nine years ago, has increased by more than one-third this year - seniors who have heard about it from friends and neighbors. The popularity of the class, according to the instructor, is due because of the relaxing aspect of painting and also the "bit of artist in all of us" waiting for the time and opportunity to be creative.

Trips planned by the September Days members include a visit to Marshall, Mich., for an "old fashioned Christmas," a holiday light tour and a visit to Meadowbrook. There also is a trip to the Southwest scheduled in March, according to Brinkerhoff.

eadwoe once-popular Walking Club which ambled down the corridors of the Quirk School has dwindled as the amount of vacant space has been reduced, Brinkerhoff said. The club was organized to give senior citizens a place to exercise indoors and many seniors totaled a mile or more in their daily walks around the marked course in the building. However, Brinkerhoff said, since the museum has taken some of the area and other programs are filling up the building, there is little room for the Walking Club to stroll. Brinkerhoff said she is investigating the possibility of reviving the Walking Club at another site.

The September Days Club will host its annual Arts and Crafts Fair on Nov. 13 and 14. Members also plan to attend the numerous other holiday bazaars and craft shows sponsored by churches, schools and community organizations.

Youngsters can enjoy after-school activities through the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department. ANP photos by Mike Cardew

Restaurant cook shares his savory secrets

Mike Zadorski is a man who never takes his work home with him... primarily because he's also a man used to working 10 or 12 hours a day, whether he's being paid or not.

Such dedication, according to Zadorski, isn't unusual in his profession, because in order to learn to do what he does well, newcomers must be willing to serve an apprenticeship under a master, many times without benefit of wages.

Zadorski is a cook and began his pursuit of a professional culinary career at the age of 16 when he obtained a part-time job at the Westland Mr. Steak restaurant operating the broiler. He quickly discovered, as did his employers, that he had a real talent for food preparation, and he has pursued his chosen career for more than 15 years.

A graduate of John Glenn High School in Westland, the 31-year-old bachelor is presently the manager-cook at LeRight's restaurant on Wayne Road in Westland.

Zadorski was quick to credit his primary teacher and inspiration, George Bokus, a former chef at the Ann Arbor Roadhouse.

"Here was a man 86 years old who had cooked on the boats coming over from Greece. I was lucky because he took the time to show me how to do things. Most chefs won't teach you. In this business, you have to learn by watching. Chefs like to keep their secrets, and you have to learn to watch everything they do if you want to get as good as they are. You literally have to watch like an eagle - sauces, cream soups, all their specialties," Zadorski explained.

The cook credits his learning to Bokus and to his own willingness to watch and learn.

"George knew I was a hard worker, and he coached me. I don't understand the kids of today, there aren't many of them willing to learn. They are primarily working for gas money, and they don't look at this as a career. I know people who have worked for free, I've done it, just to learn. In this business, that's what you have to do," Zadorski said.

Zadorski has been employed at 18 different restaurants during his career to date and claims to have learned something at each and every one of them. What does Zadorski look for when he dines at a restaurant?

"The first thing I do, obviously, is go to the rest room to wash my hands. If the rest room isn't clean, I have no reason to expect that the kitchen is clean. To me sanitation is the most important thing.

"Something else I watch for is the attitude of the servers. Are they chewing gum? Running their hands through their hair? Do they have long fingernails with black nail polish?" Zadorski said. If so, he recommends finding another place for dinner.

While the professional cook used to enjoy preparing meals for friends and entertaining, he admitted that with the hours his work requires and all he wants to do, he just doesn't have time anymore. As for favorite recipes, Zadorski confessed that he's somewhat at a loss since he is used to preparing in such large quantities, he has a hard time adjusting his favorites to individual servings.

While he's at it, Zadorski readily named his favorite meal--and it is a far cry from the gourmet specialties and exotic meals that food professionals usually name as the "ideal dinner." According to Zadorski, nothing tops a good old-fashioned prime rib, a real prime rib. "Not this rolled or pressed stuff, but a real prime rib with all the fat and the bone that you season with salt and pepper and garlic and bake for four hours. Now, that's one of the best things around," Zadorski advised.

It was with some difficulty that Zadorski found recipes applicable to home cooking, but he claims that these will provide delicious made-to-order dinners, even though much of the preparation is of the to-taste school rather than a prescribed amount dictated by the directions.

VEAL AND PEPPERS

- 4-ounce veal patty (per serving)
- 1 6-ounce can plum tomatoes
- 1/2 teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
- 2 ounces chicken broth or stock
- 1 large green pepper
- 1/2 large spanish onion
- Rice pilaf

In a medium saucepan, simmer the tomatoes, pepper and chicken stock over low heat. Slice the pepper and onion into strips and pan fry in oil until just tender but not mushy. Add to the tomato mixture and continue to simmer for about 20 minutes. Slice the veal into strips and saute in oil over medium heat until nicely browned and just tender. Place rice pilaf in casserole dish and arrange strips of browned veal over rice. Generously spoon tomato sauce over all and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Serve with fruit garnish.

MIAMI SHRIMP

- Jumbo peeled and deveined fresh shrimp
- Peanut oil
- Flour
- Salt and pepper
- Cayenne pepper
- 1 ounce dry vermouth
- Rice pilaf

Dredge the shrimp in flour seasoned with the salt, pepper and cayenne to taste. Fry until just brown and tender in peanut oil over medium heat. When nearly done, add vermouth and remove from heat after one minute or so. Place shrimp on decrusted toast and serve with rice pilaf.

RICE PILAF

- Uncle Ben's Converted Rice
- Fresh mushrooms
- Red pepper
- Diced green pepper
- Diced onion
- Chicken base (bouillion cube)
- Beef base (bouillion cube)

Prepare rice according to package directions for quantity, adding other ingredients listed. Bring water to boil, add rice, other ingredients and remove from heat. Cover pan with foil and bake in 350 degree oven for 20 minutes.

Cooking contest deadline nears

Deep behind the tinsel, the Christmas stockings, the unused wrapping paper and bows saved from last year rest those favorite holiday recipes. The ones that have withstood the test of time... and the test of that merciless Aunt Mabel, who accepts nothing less than perfection in her holiday baked goods.

And just when you thought you were safe from those baking duties - at least for a few weeks - the Associated Newspapers Third annual Holiday Baking Contest looms in the background. The competition will be fierce. The judges will be critical. And the prizes... well, they will be better than ever.

The annual cooking contest, sponsored by the newspapers, is a pre-holiday attempt to spread the Christmas cheer by way of recipes. Readers residing in the areas served by the Associated Newspapers are asked to submit their favorite recipe or recipes to the newspaper. In our kitchens, we will skillfully prepare each treat, and after much deliberation and taste testing, we will arrive at not one, not two, but three winners.

The first-place recipe will net the cook who submitted it a space-saver microwave oven. The second-place prize means a gift certificate for dinner for two at a fine dining establishment in the area. And third place? This cook will be treated to a floral arrangement from a local florist.

But, then again, everyone is a winner in the ANP cooking contest.

All recipes submitted - barring any duplicates - will be published in the Associated Newspapers Third annual Holiday Cookbook on Wednesday, Nov. 18. The cookbook will feature the recipes, and photographs of our three prize winners and the recipes of all runners-up.

When submitting recipes, please be sure to include your name, address and telephone number. Your address and phone number, of course, will be used only as a reference for the newspaper.

So, holiday cooks... get cooking. If the two cooking contests to precede this event are any indication of the popularity of the event, our ANP kitchens will be filled with the aroma of only the best holiday delicacies for weeks to come.

Facelift

Members of the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church in Wayne pitched in and provided the financial support for new aluminum siding for the church building this week. Work on the siding project began Saturday and is expected to be completed by the end of the week. According to church officials, painting the structure each year had cost more money than the $11,200 it took to purchase the siding. ANP photo by Mike Cardew

Legislator eyes changes in prep football helmets

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

The high school football season is nearing an end in the state of Michigan, but the kick-off has just been made at the state capitol, where legislators are considering a new helmet regulation for the prep stars.

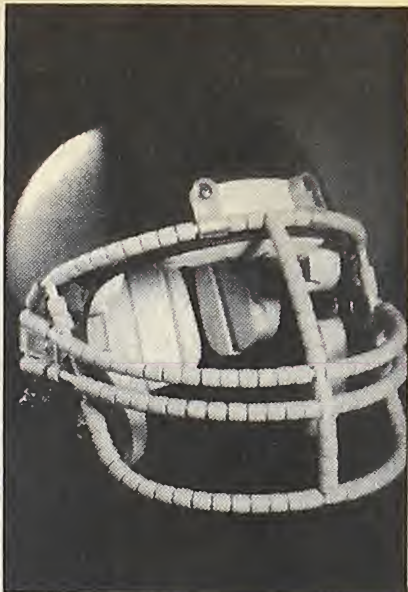

State Sen. George Hart (D-Deerborn) last week introduced a proposal aimed at preventing serious neck injuries among football players.

The bill would mean "school districts that provide tackle football, whether as interscholastic competition or as competition among pupils of the same school, shall require all football players to wear helmets that feature a plastic coated face mask overlaid with free-spinning shatterproof beads."

The requirement would apply to both football practice and actual games.

"A new type of football helmet is now available that represents the first significant change in football face masks in more than 30 years," Hart stated. "The mask should help reduce the danger of neck injuries that can cause paralysis or even death."

The mask "spin guard" was developed by Spin-Mask Inc. of Royal Oak. The masks are manufactured in Warren and contain rows of free-spinning plastic beads that overlay the face mask. Because the beads spin, they make it virtually impossible to grab the mask from any angle, according to the manufacturers.

In 1985, 26 high school students and 12 college players were seriously injured in football incidents, according to the National Federation of High School Athletics. Statistics for 1986 were unavailable.

The federation also reported seven deaths among football players, six of the seven being the result of head injuries.

Hart's proposal has been referred to the Senate Education and Mental Health Committee for consideration.

Inkster's Lorenzo Terrell (above) has been the sparkplug in the Vikings' football machine this year and he may be heading for post-season honors. Coaches met last night to pick an All-Suburban Athletic Conference team.

Who will be Wolverine 'A' swim champ?

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

For the first time since joining the Wolverine 'A' Swim Conference, Belleville swimmers enter the league championships as the "underdog."

The Tigers have won all four conference titles in as many years, however, Coach Greg Cooper and his tankers will have their backs up against the walls when the conference teams gather Nov. 10-11-12 at Wyandotte High to compete for the championships.

The defending four-time champ placed themselves in that precarious position after losing two of their six league dual meets. They will need a minor miracle to keep abreast with title favorites Monroe and Wayne Memorial.

It's no secret that we will be swimming for second place,"

I believe this one will be one of the closest meets in the conference's history. There is balance, and the power is spread around.

— Greg Cooper

said Cooper who is rounding out his first year as head coach. "However, we have some girls who will be competing for the gold."

Belleville's 17-year-old senior diver, Holly Drucker, who has qualified for the regional invitational, is among those whom Cooper feels has an excellent shot of winning the league title.

"But, right now, we are looking at our lineup to see what strategy we'll be using for the championship."

Cooper needed little, if any, strategy for the Bruins of Wyandotte last week as the Tigers swept seven out of a possible 11 first places to win 111-68 for their fourth (sixth overall) victory in ten starts.

Belleville's medley relay team of Christy Sikes, Jennifer Owsley, Jennifer Caldwell, and Sandy Overholt turned in the winning time of 2:24.93.

The Tigers received winning performances from Tina Montie in the 200-yard freestyle (2:15.58); Traci Gentle, in the 200-yard individual medley (2:40.66); Melanie Merritt, in the 100-yard butterfly (1:12.85); Rachel Snure, in the 500-yard freestyle (6:07.59); Natalie Schroeder, in the 100-yard backstroke (1:14.17); and Kristen Howard, in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:26.02).

Ironically, Drucker found herself involved in a dogfight with Wyandotte's Ami Sacks. Sacks managed to eke out the victory, handing the Tiger diver only her second setback of the 1987 campaign.

Joining Belleville at Wyandotte next week in quest of the coveted conference crown will be teams representing Wyandotte, Trenton, Lincoln Park, Wayne Memorial, Fordson, and Southgate Anderson.

"I believe this one will be one of the closest meets in the conference's history," Cooper noted. "There is a lot of balance, and the power is spread around, so it should be a good one."

Self-destruction

Huron turnovers lead to 28-0 defeat

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A combination of turnovers and penalties led to New Boston Huron's self-destruction at Pinckney, and Huron Coach Tom LaBeau says the stretch has been all but pleasant. Scoring in all but the final quarter, Pinckney claimed a 28-0 victory over their non-conference rivals in the final game of the 1987 campaign for the two teams. "We did it again," LaBeau said. "We beat ourselves. We committed two costly fumbles on drives that looked like we were driving in for touchdowns. 50 yards in penalties that took the wind right out of our sails. You can't win when you stop yourself." Pinckney got on the scoreboard in the first quarter and struck for two TDs in the next to take a 21-0 lead into the locker room. The winners got an insurance touchdown in the third period. Huron's best effort came from running back Jon Tackett who rushed for 64 yards on 12 attempts. The Chiefs brought the curtains down on the 1987 campaign with a 1-6 conference record. They piled up a 2-7 overall record for the season. "We had our ups-and-downs for the year," LaBeau said. "Our performances against such teams as Grosse Ile, Flat Rock and Riverview were outstanding." Huron lost a 3-0 thriller to Riverview, one of the powerhouses in the league and also fell 19-14 to Grosse Ile, but blanked Flat Rock 6-0. "We have some talented players here," LaBeau concluded. "I have always contended that if we can get some numbers, we will have an excellent team one of these days."

New Boston Huron holds its cage destiny in its hands.

After a superb performance last Thursday against St. Mary's of Monroe, a team that the Chiefs nipped by one the first time around, Coach Bill Harrison's cagers have maneuvered into excellent position for winning their first conference championship.

As the week commences, Huron finds itself on top of the conference standings with a 11-1 record, however, breathing down their necks are Grosse Ile and St. Mary's with 10-2 records.

Harrison and his club had a date last night to meet the Islanders.

"Needless to say, we need this game as badly as they do," Harrison stressed. "If we lose we drop into a three-way tie for first, however, on Thursday we also have a toughie against Monroe Jefferson.

"Our destiny is in our own hands. If we want the title, then we have to go out there and win it."

The Chiefs will have the home court advantage both nights.

St. Mary's again made the Chiefs sweat before handing over a 46-39 key victory to their rivals. Ahead by four (14-10) after the first eight minutes, the Chiefs hit a cold spell that nearly proved fatal. They tossed in five points, their lowest output in one single period, in the second frame and found themselves looking at a 20-19 half time deficit.

"It was a combination of a rash of infractions and poor shot selections," Harrison said. He didn't get to relax in the third period, either, where St. Mary's won a 15-14 scoring duel.

However, Huron's Pam Hughes finally got the Chiefs out of their dilemma as she pumped in five of her team's 13 fourth period points while the defense held their archrivals to a mere four points to seal the victory.

Hughes finished with 13, while teammate Lauri LaBeau tossed in a game high 17. LaBeau also accounted for five rebounds and eight assists.

St. Mary's senior forward Alma Haut paced the losers with 13 points.

Huron has a 15-1 overall record, the best in the school's history.

Clearing the path

Behind a wall of defense, Romulus's Arol Trinity (32) plows his way into enemy territory. Unfortunately, Trinity and his teammates had problems generation the offense this season and came up winners twice in their nine starts. They dropped their season finale before the home fans to Belleville. ANP photo by Phil Slaughter.

bled deep in their own territory and Rod Schellenberger recovered on the 11. Before Romulus got on the scoreboard, Belleville tilted it again. This time quarterback Scott Janack, a junior who took over the throttle from Ison, found Hunter on a 51-yard TD pass.

The Eagles averted the shutout thanks to the efforts of Ali Campbell, a tough player to stop. Campbell, a 6-0, 200-pound sophomore, who has rushed for more than 600 yards this season, racked up 84 in 15 carries and, late in the third quarter, he powered his way through the Tiger defenses and scored from the eight. Armstrong led Belleville ballcarriers with 46 yards in eight tries, but Hunter's three key receptions petted him 96 yards and two TDs for the afternoon. J.P. Fallon, injured last week against Lincoln Park, attempted to make a comeback, but he took himself out of the game. For the record, the game was originally scheduled to be played in the evening at Belleville, but because of a teachers strike in the Van Buren School District the game was switched to noon on Saturday at Romulus.

Inkster

for the final game, the 6-2, 220-pound senior bolted 71 yards on a QB sweep for his longest touchdown of the season. In the fourth quarter, Terrell came back and scored on a 32-yard sweep. He finished the game with 104 yards rushing on 13 carries. Teammate Len Shivers got 25 yards on nine attempts. Glaze called up his reserve forces to fill the glaring gaps created by the missing grid-ders. Freshman Vince Toddy responded with a superb game on defense in the second half. The young linebacker was credited with a handful of tackles.

cious second half defense. The score was tied at 10-all after one period, then Romulus grabbed a slim 24-21 halftime edge before outscoring their hosts 14-4 in the third period. The Eagles caught a cold spell in the last eight minutes, but managed to hang on for the win.

Time is running out

With the enemy closing in on him, Robichaud quarterback Eric Thomas (No. 1) has his hand on the trigger, seeking a receiver during last week's action against archrival, Inkster. Thomas and his teammates bombed the Vikings 60-0. However, they saw their slim playoff hopes go up in smoke as Muskegon Heights handed the Bulldogs a season-ending 22-12 loss. Area bowler strike consistent pattern

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

When driving down Wayne Road or Michigan Avenue — or any road in Wayne County — one might notice a familiar sight. The local bowling center parking lots are filled with cars.

As the bowling centers continue to attract people, the scores keep rising, and the competition increases. And this week featured another long list of top scorers.

In Romulus, at the Romulus Bowling Center, 37452 Huron River Drive, Nancy Napiorkowski led the way for the ladies with an impressive 254 game. Sharon Howie also had an outstanding game, as she rolled a 228.

On the mens' side of the alley was Tom McLendon, who rolled a 252, and M. Spitz, who had a 549 series.

At the Super Bowl, 45100 Ford Road, Canton, Al Sloan bowled a 721 series, including a high game of 256. Terry Edwards (630 series), Chris Barber (612-series) and Brent Murch (683-series) were also outstanding. Robin Whitman bowled an impressive 255 game at the Super Bowl.

The Lodge Lounge and Lanes, 46255 Willow Run Expressway, Belleville, was the scene of five games of 230 or higher.

Ed McMillan (290), Pat McMillan (274), Nancy King (243), Karen Roberts (233) and Bob Jawor (290) bowled the top games of the week at the "Lodge."

Tom Short bowled a 748 series to take top honor in that category.

Town 'n Country Lanes, 1100 S. Wayne Road, Westland, featured a 741 series by Larry Strasdin and a 600 series by Ranea Paiva.

The Wayne Bowl, 36900 Michigan Ave., Wayne, had B. Johnson bowling a 707 series and M. Ivory rolling a 711-series. W. Reid bowled a 290 game.

The Westland Bowl, 5940 N. Wayne Road, Westland, also had two bowlers roll 700-plus series. Mike Tochla bowled a 751, and Rick Moreno rolled a 702. Jim Nowakowski bowled a 264 game.

Other top series included Betty Huntoon (621) and Poo Trombley (638).

Chiropractors boost image in court victory

By JANICE FRITZ
ANP Staff Writer

It was an uphill fight and a battle many said couldn't be won, but after a 10-year effort, Dr. James O'Dell is celebrating a victory he feels may change his entire profession.

Three months ago, a lawsuit filed in 1976 by a national chiropractic committee against the American Medical Association and other medical groups on the grounds of conspiracy against chiropractic medicine, ended in vindication for all chiropractors across the country, who will no longer be subject to subservient treatment by medical practitioners.

The AMA, along with the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Radiology, was found guilty by U.S. District Judge Susan Getzendanner of having conspired to destroy the chiropractic profession by refusing to recognize it and boycotting the practice of chiropractic in the United States.

Getzendanner ruled that the medical groups had deliberately set out with the long-term intent to completely destroy a licensed profession.

Chiropractors chief form of therapy is realignment and adjustment of the spine by physical manipulation. They do not prescribe drugs of any kind nor perform surgery.

O'Dell, whose office is located on Wayne Road in Westland, was instrumental in implementing fundraising efforts to raise money for the lengthy lawsuit. O'Dell was the chairman of the fundraising committee for the lawsuit and is proud of the time and effort he expended in the pursuit of the verdict.

"This is the biggest win that we've ever had. The people of this profession all banded together and now we can finally see some of the roadblocks being removed," said O'Dell.

O'Dell explained that it was his father, Clair, also a chiropractor, who got him directly involved in the lawsuit in the first place.

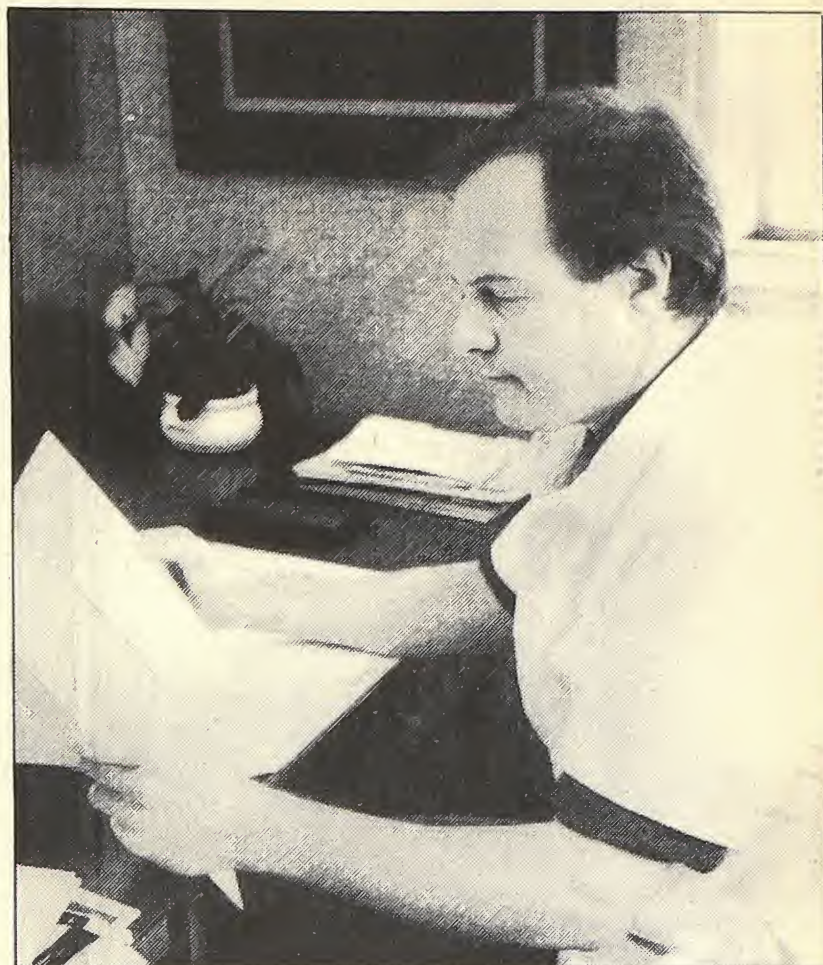

"My father has been in this business for 50 years now and he was the chairman of the Anti-Trust Committee, which comprised the five plaintiffs who filed the lawsuit. I put together the first state fundraiser for the lawsuit and was involved in it every step of the way," said O'Dell.

O'Dell said three major changes took place with the favorable ruling, including the change in previous belief held by the AMA that the association with chiropractors was unethical, the introduction of chiropractors to hospitals and better insurance coverage for patients treated by chiropractors than in earlier years.

The biggest benefit from the judge's ruling, however, is for patients, according to O'Dell.

"The people are the big winners here," said O'Dell. "Now, they are able to consider all the alternatives and not feel a conflict between medical and chiropractic practitioners. Without our practice, the consumer does not have an alternative to medical health care. We are that alternative. We're here for the people who desire natural health care without the aid of drugs," he said.

"People need to understand chiropractic medicine before our therapy even begins. We engage in the restoration and maintenance of the integrity of the spinal and nervous system. In order for the body to function at its maximum potential, this area needs to be at its best," said O'Dell.

O'Dell said that since the lawsuit, there has been an increasingly positive attitude toward the chiropractic profession within the circle of medical professionals, but he said consumers need to be made aware of the alternatives that they now have.

"This whole case was made public throughout 800 major newspapers but many people are still very unclear about all the facts about chiropractic medicine. They need to consider all their options when dealing with their own health," concluded O'Dell.

SPECIAL RATES ON VCR & CAMCORDER RENTALS

Video Viewpoint

By JOE BURNETTE

At the current rate of expansion, there may soon be a video store on every corner. That is according to Marilyn Ramey, owner of the Video Shop, 43711 Ford Road, Canton.

Ramey, a video store owner since 1983, recommends a careful evaluation of all of the facts before someone decides to call a certain video store his own. Video stores, she said, should be chosen as any other business.

Helpful hints from Ramey include looking for the friendly and knowledgeable people when searching the new video store. According to Ramey, most video store employees start out as customers.

Price is another important consideration, she said. Video rentals vary in price from $1.25 per movie to $3.50. An average rental is about $2 per day.

Some video shops also offer special discount plans for the avid renter. Ramey recommends checking these plans out so the at-home movie-goer can enjoy a substantial savings.

A third - and major - consideration, Ramey said, is convenience of the store. If the store is located in an area where you frequently shop or is on your route to work, that store will receive high ratings in this category.

In addition to the employees, price and location of the store, Ramey recommends obtaining a few suggestions and guidance tips from the store you call "home." If you are concerned about the rating of movies your children take home when you may not be available, ask the shop employees if they will permit them to rent only videos rated to your approval.

But the video business isn't only a movie rental one. Video cassette recorders need occasional servicing and repair, Ramey said. If the store has a service department - or can rent cameras to film a wedding or other special occasion - that consideration should also be an important part of your decision.

Shop carefully for a video store, Ramey urged. The smart shopper will be rewarded richly in the end.

Ramey and her husband, Ron, recently opened their fourth video store in Canton Township, located near the Canton Cinema on Ford Road. More advice from her is available by calling 981-2330.

Eye to Eye ...

Even a short trip to the hospital is too long.

Somehow, even a short trip to the hospital can be a very long ordeal.

There is the waiting. The impersonal treatment. The waiting. The surprise expenses for little extras you didn't expect.

And the waiting. Let's face it, no one likes going to the hospital; and for cataract surgery, there's no reason why you should have to go.

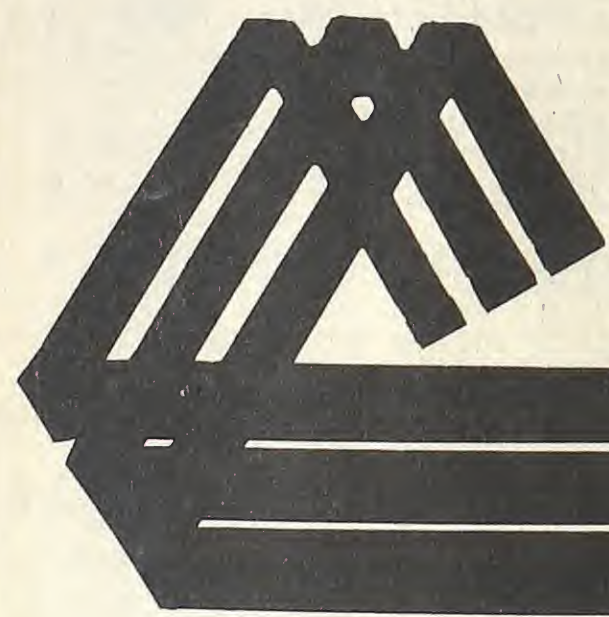

Cataract surgery is the safest type of surgery you can have, and many health and insurance organizations are requesting that it be done on an outpatient basis. Some hospitals offer outpatient cataract surgery, but with all the time and money you spend there, you'll probably feel just like an inpatient.

We are an outpatient surgery center devoted exclusively to eye surgery. Cataract surgery done here takes only about 25 minutes, and you can usually return home within 2 hours. The procedure is entirely painless, and you remain awake and alert the whole time.

And we are a participating Medicare provider, so we have agreed to do cataract surgery for what Medicare allows.

Haven't you put off your cataract surgery long enough?

Seniors: Plant is advocate of rights

Paul Plant has received several awards and recognition for his involvement in preserving the rights of senior citizens. ANP photo by Mike Cardew/staff photographer

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Paul Plant of Westland loves fighting for the rights of elderly people. And why not? At 85, Plant has become quite adept at understanding their plight.

But age, Plant will tell you, "is relative." Although he and his wife of 22 years, Georgette, perform a daily exercise routine, what is most important, he said, "is a sound mind."

Since he retired as a cost accountant for Ford Motor Co. after 23 years in 1966, Plant has devoted countless hours to assisting the elderly. He moved to Westland in 1968 and has been actively involved in senior programs ever since.

On the walls of the Plant family apartment, Georgette, 74, has proudly displayed numerous awards of her husband's achievements. In 1979, St. Elizabeth's Church in Detroit named Plant as the senior citizen of the year. He has also been honored by the mayor of Westland and governor of Michigan.

And in the Westland Hall of Fame, Located in the Senior Friendship Center on Newburgh Road, there is a plaque recognizing Plant as a "natural leader."

Earlier this month, state Rep. Justine Barns (D-Westland) also approved the selection of Plant as one of 21 people in the state to be named to the 1987 Michigan Senior Citizen Legislative Intern Program in Lansing. Only one other person from the Detroit area was chosen.

ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS: How was the intern program conducted? What was the purpose?

PLANT: First, Georgette and I enjoyed our week in Lansing. We attended 17 one-hour sessions from Monday through Friday. State house and senate representatives explained their duties and a typical day. We were updated on current issues. They knew what they were talking about. In fact, they were so good, you had to pay attention. Everything they said impressed me.

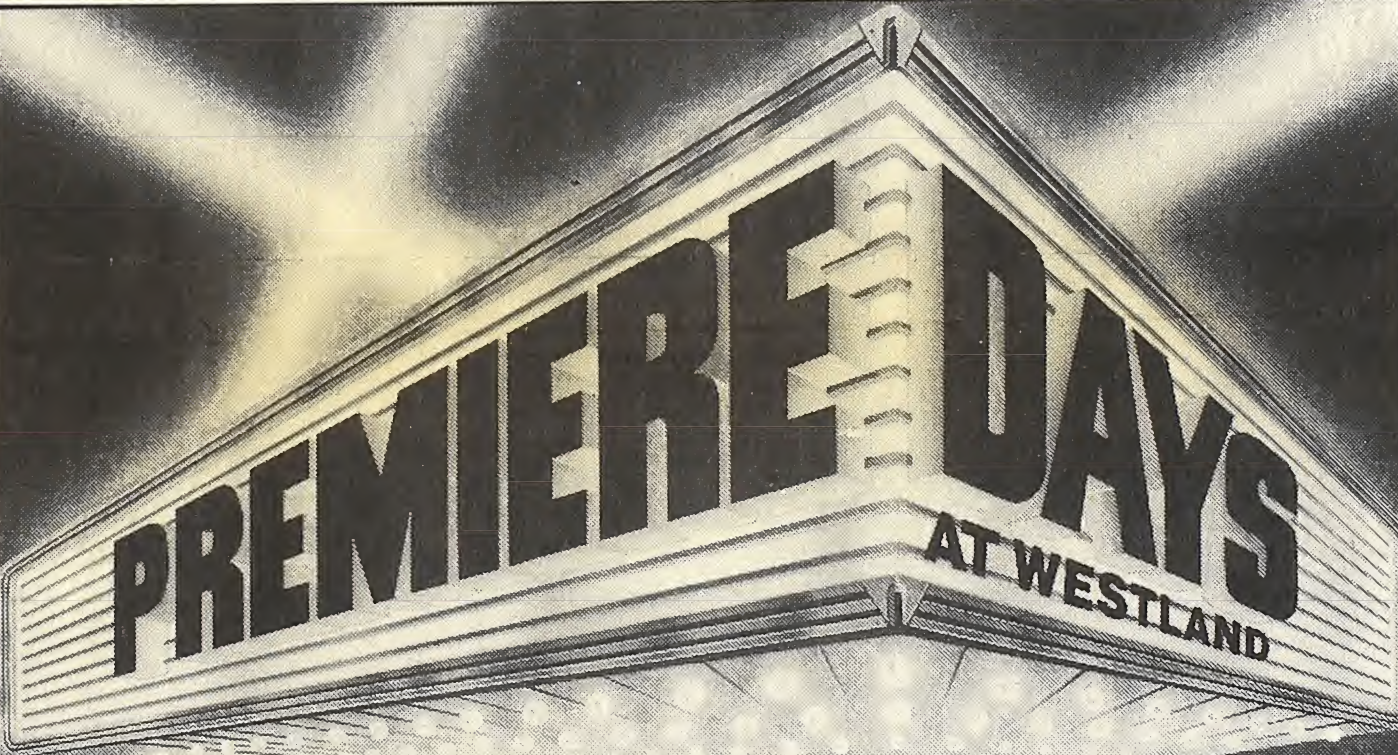

We sat down in Representative Barns' office and discussed several projects with her that would affect local seniors.

ANP: What were some projects that might affect local seniors?

PLANT: The transportation workshop was interesting. Local seniors might want to know what's happening in this area. If elderly people don't drive, chances are they don't have good transportation. If they need to shop, service is available if called within 24 hours in advance. But when I get sick, I want to see a doctor now. There's room for improvement. This is only one example.

Lack of money is the problem. But seniors need transportation. Over 224,000 seniors in Michigan regularly rely on public or private transportation other than their own. The legislators recently introduced a bill which would raise driver licenses fees and collect an additional $20 million per year. This action is long time overdue.

I also believe some action is needed on tax relief for senior citizens over 65 years old. The issue has been in limbo for many months. It is estimated that an additional 29 million in income taxes will be paid by seniors and the bling for 1987 unless the legislature does not act on a matter presently in the House Taxation Committee immediately.

EXPLORE EXCITING WESTLAND!

ANP: How do you stay so active?

PLANT: I've got to be doing something. I try to keep busy all the time, because, like a ball player, if you don't practice everyday, you won't be a good ball player. Georgette and I exercise everyday.

It's the same way with your mind. We have two or three calculators at home, but frequently we work figures in our head to keep our minds sharp.

ANP: So how did you meet your wife? Does she share your many varied interests?

PLANT: We were both born in Quebec, (Canada). Ironically, her maiden name was Laplant and her brother's name is Paul. My first wife died of cancer in 1954. We raised four boys and a girl and have only 18 grandchildren. Georgette and I married in 1961. She had never been married. It's like she was waiting for me. She's wonderful.

I retired from Ford Motor Company after 23 years in cost accounting. I started out as a bank teller. Georgette was the first woman teller at the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

I've served my time on the St. Theodore parish council. Right now, I'm a minister of the eucharist and a lector.

Most people don't realize the struggles of the elderly. Protecting their legal rights is important as well as long-term care and questions about insurance. I've made many suggestions. Luckily, some have been acted upon. Others, well, I'm working on them. And I'm not done yet.

Westland Inn combines taste with atmosphere

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

For years, I had passed by the boarded-up restaurant on Wayne Road, wondering if anything could be done with the building. I had remembered the site as a Rustler Steakhouse, and I knew that whoever took on the challenge of re-opening the restaurant would be in for a surprise.

But the surprise was on me last week as I walked into the building for a visit.

Inside of this once-vacant building at 7610 N. Wayne Road — now called the Westland Inn — I found an atmosphere of elegance — although casual — comfort and beauty. Hanging everywhere were green plants and cloth-covered lamps to provide the perfect ambience for my dinner experience.

And the glass-enclosed front dining room? What a perfect setting for a relaxing meal on a cool, fall day.

But enough about the atmosphere. The food was as superb as the setting.

Shortly after being seated, my fiancée (my ever-supportive expert on fine dining, good food and perfect manners) and I were greeted by Christy, our waitress. Christy briefed us on the specials of the day, along with the featured vegetable and extras. I was impressed with the speed of our service and the efficiency of our servers.

After much deliberation — the menu seemed endless with a dish suitable for even the most finicky eater — I opted for the prime rib, and Debbie settled for the baked chicken. With our meals, we were both offered the choice of soup, salad or cole slaw, and we both chose a garden salad to start our meal.

I mentioned before the speed of the service? No sooner were we finished with our salads when our entrees arrived. My prime rib was cooked to perfection, and Debbie's chicken was baked nicely and lightly coated with what seemed like a barbecue sauce.

We both enjoyed our ample portions of food and both declined any sort of dessert.

Because I am nosy and often peer at the meals other people order, I noticed the tempting-looking Frankenmuth-style dinner the man at the table next to me had chosen. I queried restaurant owner George Lucaj about the success of his "borrowed idea" from our northern Michigan German friends, and he explained that the meal had become one of the most popular at the eatery since he introduced it last year.

A former Frankenmuth cook immigrated to the Westland Inn, Lucaj said, and didn't forget the fine skills of preparing chicken with all of the fix-ins. Lucaj told me he has received several repeat orders for the dish . . . and from the looks of his Sunday night crowd, I wouldn't debate the point.

Good food, however, isn't all that is to be offered at the Westland Inn. The meals Debbie and I enjoyed were reasonably priced ($8.95 for prime rib, $5.75 for baked chicken), and the restaurant also features a full bar.

The atmosphere is tailored to the family, and the service is prompt, friendly and efficient. Lucaj told me that the restaurant is only two years old. Surprised at the relative success of such a young business, I pried into Lucaj's background, trying to find the secret of his success.

An immigrant from Yugoslavia, Lucaj, 45, came to the U.S. in 1968 with his wife, Terisa. The family members — including daughters Linda and Lenora, sons Tony and Robert and cousin Vasek — all work in the restaurant and another 6-year-old eatery owned by Lucaj in Pontiac.

But what is the real secret?

"We just offer good food. The atmosphere is good, too, but people keep coming back because the food is good," Lucaj said.

I wouldn't argue that point, as I am now trying to pinpoint a date in which I can return to try that Frankenmuth-style chicken on my own. If the other food served is any indication of the quality of the chicken, the gas I will save from here to Frankenmuth will be only a small part of the bargain!

The Westland Inn, located at 7610 N. Wayne Road, across from the Westland Center, Westland, is open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday. Breakfast, lunch and dinner are served, and a full bar is available. Visa, Mastercard, American Express and Diner's Club — but no personal checks — are accepted.

The Westland Inn, located on Wayne Road, near the Westland Center in Westland, combined excellent meals and service with a pleasant dining atmosphere. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer
